by Lindsey

The world looks gargantuan
But the power of a dream is even greater.
Looking up to see the sights
But putting down a touch that changes lives.
Two feet do not always need to be on the ground
But rise about the clouds.
Nor here not there
Yet leaving footsteps
Through the snow into the sand.
Tackling the hardships with close precision
Withholding the pain.
Compared to the world, the hand is miniscule
But the affect given is dynamic.
